Overview

This guide is designed to help you determine if you are eligible to apply for an extension of your work permit or change conditions of your stay in Canada, including applying for an initial work permit (see the section Who may apply for a work permit from within Canada?).

Determining eligibility
Workers are a class of temporary resident who are legally authorized to enter Canada temporarily to work. They are subject to various conditions.

This application guide is for temporary residents who are already in Canada and wish to:

- extend their stay as a worker;
- change conditions of their stay as a worker;
- change their class to include permission to work; or
- correct problems in their status.

If you are currently working in Canada and want to change conditions on your work permit (e.g. change length, employer or occupation), you must apply and obtain a new work permit. You should apply before making the change. For any permit, you should always apply at least 30 days before your status expires.

Normally, a work permit must be applied for prior to coming to Canada. Only in a few special circumstances presented in this guide can an initial work permit be applied for within Canada:

- you presently hold a valid study or work permit;
- you are the spouse of a study or work permit holder;
- you were previously authorized to work without a permit;
- you presently hold a valid Temporary Resident Permit;
- you are a refugee claimant or an applicant for permanent residence in Canada under section 207 of the IRPR, or
- you are a trader or investor, intra-company transferee or professional under NAFTA.

Note: The validity of your work permit cannot exceed the validity of your passport. Therefore, you should ensure that your passport will be valid for a longer period than your requested extension.

Loss of temporary resident status:

You lose your temporary resident status and authorization to work if your status has expired, you did not comply with all of the conditions on your permit or you have worked or studied without a required permit. If you have lost your status, you may have committed an offence under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act and could be subject to an admissibility hearing that could lead to your removal from Canada.

If your temporary resident status expired and you wish to stay in Canada, you may apply for restoration of status within 90 days of your permit expiry date or you must leave Canada. If you wish to apply for restoration, complete the enclosed application providing full details of how you came to commit the offence. There is no guarantee that your application will be accepted. See the section Restoration of Status.

It is illegal to remain in Canada beyond the validity of your status in Canada.

It is illegal to work without a required work permit.
It is illegal to study without a required study permit.

Important: Applying for more than one service at the same time

You may apply for a study permit by completing the IMM 5709 form. Details and instructions on how to apply for a study permit from within Canada may be obtained by visiting our web page Applying to Change Conditions or Extend Your Stay in Canada as a Student.

After reading this guide, if you believe you are eligible to apply then you should proceed as instructed below:

- Gather all the necessary documents. They are listed on the Document Checklist.
- Calculate and pay the fees.
- Fill in the forms carefully and completely.
- Sign and date your forms.
- Submit your application, required fees and all supporting documents online or by mail.

Processing times for your application

The Case Processing Centre will review your application to determine if it is complete. If your application is not signed, if all mandatory sections are not completed, or if the required fee is missing, your application will be returned to you and you will have to re-apply.

Note: If your application is rejected as “incomplete”, it is considered to have never been submitted and therefore you would not benefit from ‘implied status’. If you reapply after your current status has expired, you will need to apply for restoration of status. See the section Restoration of Status.

If your application is complete, the Case Processing Centre will send you either:

- a visitor record, a new work permit or a new study permit; or
- a letter refusing your application; or
- notification that your application has been referred to a local Canada Immigration Centre for further assessment.

If your application is referred to a local office, they will contact you to obtain additional information or clarification and if required, invite you to an interview. It may take up to three months for them to contact you.

Once they receive the additional information or clarification, the local office will complete the final stages of processing. The local office will notify you by mail of their decision.
Status in Canada

Who receives temporary resident status?
All persons coming to Canada who are not Canadian citizens or permanent residents can request to enter as visitor, student or worker. When they enter Canada they are given temporary resident status for a limited period of time.

How do I know the expiry date of my temporary resident status?
Temporary residents travelling with passports:
When you arrived in Canada and gave your passport to the officer, they authorized your stay by placing a stamp in your passport and/or issuing an additional document. Check your passport. If you find a stamp, it should look like one of these.

For example, if the officer specified a date as shown in the above illustration, your temporary resident status would expire on June 30th, 1993.

If there is no stamp, a handwritten date or document in your passport, your temporary resident status will expire six months from the day you arrived in Canada.

If you were given a visitor record, study or work permit, the expiry date is marked on the document.

When applying to change conditions or extend your stay in Canada, you are required to submit photocopies of passport pages clearly showing the stamp made by Canadian authorities on your most recent entry to Canada.

Note:
The Case Processing Centre receives large volumes of applications in the temporary resident categories each year. It is recommended that you apply at least 30 days before the expiry of your current document. However, you may want to apply in advance of this recommended period since processing delays vary. Check our current processing times.
For applicants who require a Temporary Resident Visa (TRV) to enter Canada: The renewal of a work permit does not affect your TRV. If you wish to leave and re-enter Canada, it is your responsibility to make sure your TRV stays valid. If you currently reside in Canada and would like to get a new TRV, you must apply for a TRV to the Case Processing Centre – Ottawa before leaving. If you decide to leave, you must apply for and obtain a TRV abroad by applying to a Canadian migration office (see Application for a Temporary Resident Visa).

For applicants who require an Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA) to enter Canada: As of May 1st, 2017, an eTA is automatically issued to you with the renewal of your work permit. However, if you plan to leave and return to Canada by air before you renew your permit, you must apply for an eTA separately.

As of May 1st, 2017, eligible citizens of select visa-required countries will receive an eTA when they renew their work permit. The eTA may be used to travel to Canada by air only. Visit Electronic Travel Authorization for more information.

Travelling outside Canada while your work permit is being processed:

If you have applied to extend your work permit and plan to travel outside Canada while your application is in process, you can leave and come back. However, one of three things will happen when you return to Canada:

- If we haven’t made a decision on your work permit, you may be allowed to come back to Canada as a visitor. If this is the case, you can’t work until you get your new work permit. The officer at the port of entry may ask you to prove that you have enough money to support yourself in Canada.
- You may be allowed to come back to Canada as a worker, if the officer at the port of entry determines that we issued your work permit while you were away.
- You may be asked to apply for a new work permit at the port of entry.

Note:

It’s possible that you will not be able to enter Canada. The final decision is always made by the officer at the port of entry.

Citizens of the United States (U.S.) do not require passports or travel documents to enter or return to Canada. Lawful permanent residents of the U.S. require an eTA if they are travelling to Canada by air, including if they are entering Canada from the U.S. or St. Pierre and Miquelon. Both U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents of the U.S. must provide documentary proof of citizenship or permanent residence such as a national identity card or an alien registration card.

May I leave, then re-enter Canada?
Yes. However, you must ensure that you have the right travel documents to return to Canada.

A work permit isn’t a travel document. It doesn’t give you the right to travel to Canada. Along with your permit, you need either:

- a temporary resident visa or
- an Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA)

Having an eTA or a visa, along with your work permit, doesn’t guarantee that we’ll let you back into Canada. You must show the border services officer that you meet all the requirements before we’ll let you re-enter.

If you’re from a visa-exempt country

Along with your work permit, you need:

- a valid passport and
- an Electronic Travel Authorization (if you plan to travel to Canada by air)

If you received your initial work permit before August 1, 2015, you need to apply for an eTA if you don’t already have one.

If you received your initial work permit on or after August 1, 2015, you already have an eTA. We automatically issued it to you when we approved your initial work permit. It’s valid for 5 years or until your passport expires. See your letter of introduction for details.

Renewing your work permit

If your application for a work permit renewal is approved on or after May 1, 2017, we will automatically issue you an eTA.

If your work permit was approved before May 1, 2017 and you don’t already have an eTA, you’ll need to get one before you return to Canada by air.

If you’re from a visa-required country

You’ll need a valid visa and a valid work permit to return to Canada to work. You don’t need a valid visa if you return directly from a visit only to the United States or St. Pierre and Miquelon. You must re-apply for a visitor visa if your visa:

- has expired or
- was only valid for a single entry to Canada

Starting May 1, 2017, eligible citizens of select visa-required countries will receive an eTA when they renew their work permit. The eTA is electronically linked to the passport you used to renew your permit and is valid for five years or until your passport expires. You can only use the eTA when you fly to, or transit through Canada by air. You’ll receive a letter from us with information about your eTA number and expiration date.
Note:

If you already have a valid visitor visa, you can use it to travel to Canada until it expires. A visitor visa will let you travel to Canada by plane, car, bus, train or boat. It’s possible that you will not be able to enter Canada. The final decision is always made by the officer at the port of entry.

Citizens of the United States (U.S.) do not require passports or travel documents to enter or return to Canada. Lawful permanent residents of the U.S. require an eTA if they’re travelling to Canada by air, including if they’re entering Canada from the U.S. or St. Pierre and Miquelon. Both U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents from the U.S. must provide documentary proof of citizenship or permanent residence such as a national identity card or an alien registration card.

Working in Canada

What is work?

Work is an activity for which wages or commission is earned, or even if unpaid, that competes directly with activities of Canadian citizens or permanent residents on the Canadian labour market.

What is a work permit?

A work permit is a written authorization to work in Canada issued by an officer to a person who is not a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada. It is required if the employment location is in Canada, whether or not the employer is in Canada.

Employer Compliance Regime

The Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations (IRPR) contain requirements that enable Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) to better protect your rights when you come to work in Canada by ensuring that employers respect the terms of their offers of employment.

In a work permit application, the employers will be evaluated on:

- whether the offer of employment is genuine,
- past history of employers compliance to the commitments outlined in offers of employment to foreign workers hired in the past six years in respect to wages, working conditions and the occupation,
- compliance with Federal-Provincial or Territorial Laws, and
- if the employer has been banned from hiring a foreign national as per the IRPR.

In cases where the employer is found to have not complied with previous commitments to foreign workers, the employer may be deemed ineligible to hire a foreign worker for two years.

You must not work for an ineligible employer. Check our webpage to view the current List of Ineligible Employers.

Note: If your employer is a mission, foreign government, international organization or a bridge or tunnel authority, they may be exempt from the Employer Compliance Regime. Find out more about this exemption.

What is a Labour Market Impact Assessment (LMIA)?

An LMIA is an assessment provided by ESDC which enables an IRCC or CBSA officer to determine whether the employment of the foreign worker is likely to have a positive or neutral impact on the labour market in Canada. An LMIA may be required in order for a work permit to be issued. The LMIA must be included with your work permit application.

Note: LMIA-exempt work permits have different requirements that must be met and these are reviewed by IRCC or CBSA. Find out if you are exempt from a LMIA.

Offers of Employment from a specific employer for LMIA-exempt foreign workers

If an employer is offering you a specific job, then you need an Offer of Employment number. In order to obtain this number, the employer must use the Employer Portal to:

- submit the offer of employment information and
- pay the $230 employer compliance fee or upload proof of their fee exemption

Make sure the employer gives you the Offer of Employment number before you submit your work permit application. The Offer of Employment number starts with an “A” and is followed by 7 numbers.

Who may apply for a work permit from within Canada?

Important: The ability to apply in Canada does not guarantee acceptance. Eligibility criteria for the category of work permit must be met.

The following persons may apply for a work permit from within Canada:

- Holders of work or study permits and their family members;
Note: Spouses or common-law partners of highly skilled foreign workers may themselves be authorized to work without first having confirmation from Employment and Social Development Canada (ESDC). In the case of workers destined for Quebec, without having to obtain a CAQ from the Ministère de l’Immigration, de la Diversité et de l’Inclusion (MIDI). The principal foreign worker must be doing work which is at a level that falls within National Occupational Classification (NOC) Skill Levels O, A or B in order for them to qualify for a work permit. These skill levels include management and professional occupations and technical or skilled tradespersons. See if you need a Labour Market Impact Assessment.

- Successful graduates from a program at a Canadian university, community, college, CÉGEP, or publicly funded trade/technical school (or from a Canadian private institution authorized by provincial statute to confer degrees) who wish to work for a maximum of one or two years in employment related to their course of study. The maximum length will depend on the length and location of their studies, and the location of their employer. Graduates must submit an application for a work permit within 90 days of the issuance of your final marks. Their study permit must be valid upon submission of their application for a work permit. For further details refer to the Stay in Canada after graduation;
- Persons currently working in Canada, who are not business visitors and who don’t require a work permit, who are applying for secondary employment in Canada;
- Holders of temporary resident permits (TRPs) valid for a minimum of 6 months and their family members;
- Refugee claimants and persons subject to an unenforceable removal order;
- In-Canada permanent resident applicants and their family members who are members of the following classes, determined eligible for permanent resident (PR) status: live-in-caregiver, spouse or common-law partner, protected persons, and humanitarian and compassionate considerations (H&C);
- Persons whose work permits were authorized by a migration office abroad, where the permit was not issued at a port of entry;
- Mexican citizens who have been admitted to Canada as visitors may apply for a work permit under any North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) category. U.S. citizens admitted as visitors may apply in Canada under the Professional or Intra-company Transferee NAFTA categories only. These provisions are in accordance with reciprocal arrangements.

What requirements must I meet to obtain a work permit?

You must show the officer that you meet the requirements of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act (IRPA) and the Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations (IRPR) and that you will be in Canada for a temporary stay. You must:

- satisfy an officer that you will leave Canada at the end of your employment,
- show that you have enough money during your stay in Canada to take care of yourself and your family members and to return home,
- be law-abiding and have no record of criminal activity (you may be asked to provide a Police Clearance Certificate),
- not be a danger to the security of Canada,
- be in good health and complete a medical examination, if required,
- not intend to engage in employment with an employer on the List of Ineligible Employers,
- not intend to engage in employment with an employer who, on a regular basis, offers striptease, erotic dance, escort services or erotic massages,
- provide any additional documents requested by the officer to establish your admissibility.

What information and documentation do I require?

In addition to the requirements for all temporary residents, you must provide:

- a copy of the LMIA provided by ESDC, if applicable, and a copy of your job offer letter from your prospective employer; or the Offer of Employment number (The Offer of Employment number starts with an “A” and is followed by 7 numbers). Your employer should provide it to you;
- evidence that you meet the requirements of the job, possibly including specific educational requirements and a valid Canadian provincial or territorial trade certificate;
- a copy of the Certificat d’acceptation du Québec (CAQ) issued by the Ministère de l’Immigration, de la Diversité et de l’Inclusion (MIDI) if you work in Quebec or will be working in Quebec. If you do not need an ESDC confirmation you will usually not need a CAQ;

Note: If you are in the Live-in Caregiver program and are still within your qualifying period for permanent residence (i.e. within 4 years of your arrival in Canada), please provide a copy of your employment contract and your LMIA which was issued on or before November 30, 2014.

Note: If you are in the International Experience Canada (IEC) program and want to extend your status as a worker to reach the maximum duration allowed under the bilateral agreement or arrangement, you will need to provide proof of health insurance that is valid for the duration of the time you are seeking to extend your stay. If proof of your insurance is not valid for the entire period for which you are seeking an extension of the work permit, the duration of your work permit may be shortened accordingly. This only applies to IEC participants who want to extend their status as workers with the same employer and under the same conditions of their initial work permit.
If you are a refugee claimant you will need to prove that you cannot support yourself without recourse to social assistance (welfare). For example, if you are currently receiving social assistance, attach a letter from the provincial social services department indicating you are receiving money or attach a cheque stub if it indicates clearly that it was issued by the provincial social services department.

Are there any conditions on my work permit?

An officer may impose, vary or cancel conditions when issuing a work permit. These may include one or more of the following:

- the type of employment in which you may work;
- the employer for whom you may work;
- where you may work;
- how long you may continue to work;
- the times or period of work.

When is a medical examination required?

If you plan to remain in Canada for six months or less:

- you generally do not require a medical exam.

If you plan to remain in Canada for another six months or longer:

You will need a medical exam if you have lived temporarily for six or more months in a row:

- in one or more of these countries or territories;
- in the one year immediately before the date of your application. (This applies even if you are a citizen of a country that does not need a visa to enter Canada.)

Regardless of the length of time you are in Canada, you will need a medical exam if you wish to work in one of the following fields:

- a designated occupation, such as the field of health services or with children. Examples of designated occupations include hospital staff, clinical laboratory workers, patient attendants in nursing and geriatric homes, and medical and dental students admitted to attend Canadian universities;
- to work in agricultural occupations, you will need a medical exam if you have lived in certain countries or territories.
Medical exams should be done at least two months before the current expiry of your permit and intended future employment, to avoid processing delays and the return or refusal of your application due to incomplete information.

Find out more by checking the Medical examination requirements for temporary residents.

Medical instructions

You may either:

- complete an upfront medical examination by contacting a Panel Physician; or
- wait until your application is reviewed and medical instructions are provided to you by the immigration office.

Get the instructions to complete the medical examination.

Note: When medical results are submitted up-front, routine cases benefit from faster processing since we do not have to request them at a later date. If you choose to have an upfront medical exam, you must submit proof that you completed the medical examination with your application. Failure to do so may result in processing delays.

Restoration of status

You may be able to restore your status as a visitor, student or worker within 90 days of losing it, if you lost it because:

- you stayed in Canada longer than the period authorized for your stay (but not longer than 90 days).
- you changed employers, location of employment, or type of work (occupation or level of responsibility) before obtaining a new work permit.
- you changed the type of studies, educational institutions, location of studies, or times and periods of studies without applying to change these conditions on your study permit if they were specified on your study permit.

You may still be eligible for restoration if you continue to meet the initial requirements for your stay and have not failed to comply with other conditions imposed.

If you wish to obtain a new study or work permit and restore your temporary resident status, you must:

- submit your application within 90 days of losing your status.
- explain all of the facts and circumstances that prevented you from complying with the conditions of your permit
- keep meeting the requirements for your stay
- meet all the remaining conditions listed on your permit, and
- pay your fees

Restoration applies to each family member who has lost his or her status. There is no guarantee that your application will be approved.

If you have dependent children aged 18 years or older, they must fill out their own copy of this form if a representative is also conducting business on their behalf.

- gives advice, consultation, or guidance to you at any stage of the application process; and
- has your consent to conduct business on your behalf with IRCC and the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA).

You are not obliged to hire a representative. We treat everyone equally, whether they use the service of a representative or not.

For more information, see: Use of a Representative.

Paying the fees

Required fees

You must pay a Processing Fee for each service that you require and all fees must be submitted with your application. If you apply for more than one service on a single application you must add up the fees for each service and submit the total of the fees with your application.

For information including eligibility, fees and required documents for studying in Canada, refer to the guide Applying to Change Conditions or Extend Your Stay in Canada - Student (IMM 5552) or consult the Help Centre.
You may submit an application for any of or a combination of the following services:

- To extend your stay in Canada as a worker;
- To request an initial work permit;
- To restore your status as worker (restoration of temporary resident status due to loss of status).

Note: If you are a Refugee Claimant for whom no final decision has been made, or you have found to be a Convention Refugee or a Protected Person, you don’t need to pay the processing fee for work permits, study permits, or temporary resident permits.

If a decision has been made and you have not been found to be a Convention Refugee or a Protected Person, but are awaiting an appeal in federal court, you are required to pay the processing fee as a decision has been made on your initial application.

Use this chart to calculate the fees required for the services you are requesting. If you or your family members are applying for other services, you can pay the fees all together.

Note: It is not necessary to make a separate application for an extension of temporary resident status when you apply for a work or study permit. The officer will issue all the necessary documentation with the one application.

Make sure that you are eligible before you pay your fees and that you provide all the information requested before you submit the application. The processing fee will not be refunded, regardless of the final decision once the Case Processing Centre has started processing the application. For example, if your work permit has expired and you incorrectly apply for an extension of work permit, no refund for the extension will be provided and you will be asked to provide a second fee for the restoration.

Note:
1. If you are out of status and you are applying for a work permit, you must pay:
   - the work permit fee AND
   - the fee to restore temporary resident status;
   The fee to restore temporary resident status applies to each member who has lost his or her status.

2. If you are applying for an Open Work Permit, you must pay the $100 Open Work Permit Holder fee in addition to the Work Permit fee of $155.

If we determine that you are not eligible, your application will be considered “processed” and your application fees will not be refunded. If you apply again, you will have to pay the application fees again.

The Open Work Permit Holder fee is refunded if the application is refused.
